AUNT LUCIA DRAWS CAPACITY HOUSES

Odeon Hall Packed Two Nights for Local Talent Show

"Aunt Lucia" the famous collegiate comedy scored a big hit when presented at Odeon Hall last Thursday and Friday nights. The event had been widely heralded for some time before and none of those who attended, and many came from a distance, was heard to voice disappointment.

The cast, headed by Addison Saunders as Jerry and "Aunt Lucia," was an all-star aggregation. Mr. Saunders, whose reputation in this line was already well known, was the center of attraction. Others who drew applause were Fred B. Merrill as the Butler and Egg Man, Henry W. Boyker as Mr. Collins, and Hugh Thurston as Prof. Gaddis, in their persistent attempts to win the hand of "Aunt Lucia."

THE CAST:

Jerry,	Addison Saunders
George,	Arthur Cutler
Dick,	Daniel Wright
Betsy,	Vivian Wright
Molly,	Mary Leeman
Ethelyn,	Mrs. Doris Lord
Butler and Egg Man,	Erud B. Merrill

 Catherine Lyon, were all excellent numbers and drew the applause of the appreciative house. The orchestra con-stating of Robert Lord, piano; Steven Lord, violin; Lawrence Lord, trumpet; Arthur Horrick, saxophone; Angelo Onofrio, banjo; and Earl Eldridge, drums, rendered excellent music in both performances and at the dance after the show on Friday evening.

"Aunt Lucia" was sponsored by the Federal Lions Club under the direction of Violet Benton McElroy of Cleveland, Ohio. The proceeds which amounted to over $100 will be used for the community shelter rink on the Commodore which was a decided success last winter.

EXTRACTS FROM THE DIARY OF
A GOLD STAR MOTHER ON HER
PILGRIMAGE TO FRANCE

September 10th. After breakfast we met in the lobby and were given identification cards to carry with us, one side French, one side English. We have ribbons to wear which show the group to which we belong. Ours is a cream color with a gold star. Some are red, others green. We are grouped according to the cemeteries we are to visit. About sixty are to go to the Oise Aisne. About 2:30 our names were called and we were put into busses. We were expected to remember our husbands and seat for future rides. We were on our way to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The ride was beautiful and many interesting things were called to our attention. We passed down the Avenue of President Wilson. We marched around the Arch of Triumph following the officers. The path to the tomb was lined with men, women and children. Mrs. E. E. Thrasher of New Hampshire, the oldest lady in our party, laid the wreath for the U. S. Government. There were four other wreaths sent by different States and laid by women from those States. After laying the wreaths the officers stood for a minute at attention. After the ceremony at the grave we were given a reception at the Restaurant Laurant. Col. Richard T. Ellis, who is head of the pilgrimage in France, welcomed us, then introduced Ambassador Edge as first speaker. He said, in part, "With this party 3,653 mothers and widows have visited the graves of their sons and husbands and I have seen and talked with as many as I could." He spoke very highly of the French government and people. One thought he wanted to emphasize was that the mothers should go back home with a feeling of pride in the part they had played in winning the war. Col. Ellis then introduced a high French officer who made us welcome to France and assured us of the undying gratitude of the French people. The next speaker was the Dean of the Protestant Churches in Paris. He said he was here during the war and knew many of our boys. He had heard it said that the war had accomplished nothing; that our boys had been sacrificed in vain. He wanted us not to believe that and mentioned a few of the things that would have happened if we had not won the war. He said grace and we were served ham sandwiches, fruit cake and ice cream, with coffee, tea, or chocolate. Col. Williams, whom we had not seen since leaving the boat, came in, followed by "Mike." The Colonel said he had come to bid us good bye as he would not see us again. Mike assured us he would be ready to accompany us back to the U. S. A.

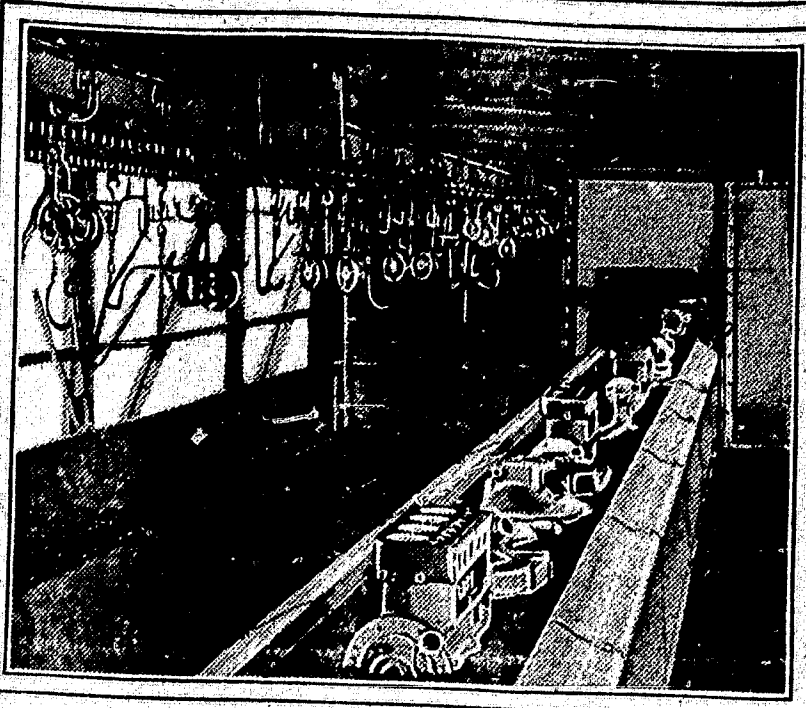

September 11. After luncheon we were taken to the Church of the Sacred Heart. It is one of the newer churches, built on the highest point in Paris. You can look down on the city. There is a continuous service there. It is very beautiful. It began to rain after we got back to the hotel.

September 12. We left Hotel Ambassador about 2:00 P. M., saw many interesting things on the way. We saw the monument of Calais seventeen miles from Paris which was the nearest the Germans got. It was Calais who collected all taxes and every available man and rushed them there and drove back the Germans in 1914. We passed through many farming districts. The houses were in clusters with farming land all around, with patches of vegetables and beds of flowers everywhere. There were no barns to be seen. When we asked for them the guide said the stock was housed in one end of the house. Farming methods seemed a hundred years behind the times. There were generally three yoke of oxen hitched to a plow, and three horses always tandem hauling a two wheeled cart that looked almost as large as a good sized wheelbarrow. I saw cows of all colors but saw only one pair of colored oxen. They were always a cream white.

We stopped at Hotel Patin for tea. It was a beautiful spot on the river Marne. There were cement walks on either side of the river. The road ran along one side, the hotel on the other. There was the dearest little garden, beautiful shrubs, flowers and trees. The walks were pebbles. About 6:30 P. M. we arrived at Hotel Lion Rouge, which was our headquarters while visiting the cemeteries.

September 13. In the morning we visited the cemetery Oise Aisne. We were taken into the hostess house where we were greeted by a charming American hostess. Then we were conducted to the cemetery. Each one was taken to the block she was interested in. A wreath was handed to her by the official. Each grave to be visited was marked with a small American flag. It was pointed out and you went alone to the grave. The wooden crosses have been replaced by marble. The Jews have the Star of David instead of a cross. Occasionally you came to a cross inscribed "In honored sleep here lies an American known but to God." The cemetery is divided by a wide road with a flag pole about half way. There are no flowers, just a green lawn with the white crosses. A beautiful monument

Miles of Conveyors in Ford Plant

This picture shows two types of conveyors in use in the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company.

AN ENDLESS chain conveyor, three and a half to four miles long, said to be the longest in the world, has just been completed at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. On it parts of Ford cars in the process of manufacture are transported from one building to another and completed parts are carried direct to railroad cars for shipment to branch assembly plants.

The conveyor, which carries its cargo on suspended hooks, has a daily capacity for 300,000 parts weighing over 2,000,000 pounds. It supplants eight cars and trucks which have been used for the transfer of many parts from one point to another in the Ford plant.

This longest conveyor of them all is a development of the Ford pulley chain, which could be done by any labor that could better be done by machine.

In the early days of his manufacturing career, Mr. Ford devised the assembly line—a moving track on which cars in the process of assembly went to the workmen instead of the workmen carrying parts to the car. The assembly line, perfected in many ways, is now used by automobile manufacturers generally.

The value of the conveyor in reducing physical labor, in saving time, in preserving system and in cutting costs soon became apparent and its use was extended to other purposes about the plant. Now there are literally miles of conveyors of various types in the Ford plant. Some of them carry parts from one building to another and are carefully synchronized so that the parts arrive at precisely the right moment and in the exact spot where they are needed. Others transport red hot in pieces of steel weighing nearly a ton each. Still others move outsize ship motors.

If it were not for the conveyors, according to officials of the Ford Company, mass production would not be possible on its present scale.

wounded men about 600 of whom were Americans, in an underground passage of the old Abby, living chiefly on corned beef. She was delighted to see us, shook hands over and over, saying "American corned beef," her only English.

THE FORD

13-PLATE

BATTERY

$7.50

STRONG AND STURDY

The Ford battery has abundant mechanical and electrical strength to give long service and excellent performance in a car or truck.

It is a 13-plate battery, and is so designed that it will give a continued and steady supply of power which is ample for starting an engine under the most severe weather conditions.

Few things about a car can cause more serious inconvenience than a weak, faulty or neglected battery. A new Ford battery, with reasonable attention, will serve you unflinchingly for an extended period of time.

BUILT TO FORD STANDARDS

The finest materials are combined with skilled workmanship in making the Ford battery. It passes our exacting tests, which tax its quality and capacity to a degree seldom reached under operating conditions in a car.

LOW-PRICED

The Ford battery is soundly built, without radical departure from accepted practice. Being produced in large quantity, economies in manufacture are possible which permit a low price for a unit of such value.

This battery is equal to any demand which normal service requires. It will return, in quality and length of electrical service, many times its cost of installation.

The price is $7.50, and it takes but a short time to install. Allowance made on your old battery.

OUR HIRED MAN

BY A. J. DUNLAP

He said he came in on the road.
His baggage was only a box.
Six packs of cards and a pair of old shoes.
We were up in the haymow
One day as he harnessed old Nell;
She stepped on his toe and he shouted
Bad names that we never would tell.

His partner who worked on the bridge gang,
Got red with a fever that fell;
Our hired man drew all of his wages
And gave him the check for it all.
He said, "If my pard gets the lockout,
I want to be sure that I done
The best that I could when he lived.
His broke, the poor son-of-a-gun."

Some day he must stand at the bar
Up yonder and answer the call
Of him who is lord of the Nations
The judge of the great and the small.
I know the dead judge will remember
The coin, though a mere bagatelle,
He gave to his pard, and forget
The bad words he said to old Nell.

New Rochelle Founded by Huguenot Refugees

New Rochelle was founded by the French Huguenot refugees in 1688. "The founders," says the author of "New Rochelle Through Seven Generations," were the sons and grandsons of those who fled from the persecutions of the French king in the reign of Louis XIV. The city of La Rochelle until reduced from 27,000 to 5,000 souls. . . . Fifty three years after this famous flight of La Rochelle, when King Louis XIV caused the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, many citizens of La Rochelle fled to England. It was a body of these refugees who about 1684 commissioned Governor Lefebvre of New York to purchase a tract of land for them in America. The governor bought for them "from John Pell, Esq., for this purpose, 6,000 acres of land. The price was 1,675 pounds, 25 shillings sterling current silver money of this province" (about $8,000) "and one fat calf on every four and twelfth day, forever, if demanded." In Hudson park is a monument marking the site of the landing of the emigrants. About 30 families comprised this colony.

"John Bull," Englishman, Depicted by Scotsman

It was not the English, but a Scot who first fastened on the English people the name of John Bull. The man who christened this feat was a favored physician in ordinary to good Queen Anne, a personal friend of the queen's chief minister, the famous associate of Swift and Pope. His name was John Arbuthnot, and he wrote, in 1701, "The History of John Bull."

Proofs of Flood Story

Proofs of a great flood, probably of biblical dimensions, have been found in the ruins of the city of Uruk, near the mouth of the Tigris. The ruins are of the city of Uruk, which was one of the great cities of the world in the time of the Assyrians. The ruins are of the city of Uruk, which was one of the great cities of the world in the time of the Assyrians.

The Paravane

One of the most curious of the world's warships is the paravane. It is a small, fast, and maneuverable vessel, which is used to tow a large net behind it. The net is used to catch mines, which are then destroyed by the paravane. The paravane is a very important part of the navy's defense system.

Famous London Bridges

London bridge has never actually fallen down. Old London bridge, begun about 1170, was completed in 1209. It carried a row of timber houses, which were frequently burned down, but the main structure remained until the beginning of the nineteenth century. The old bridge was the center for book sellers and other tradesmen. On it stood the chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, and a tower on which the heads of traitors were exposed to view. The present London bridge was begun in 1825 and completed in 1831. It is a stone bridge with five granite arches, is 625 feet long, 65 feet wide and 30 feet above the river.

Halcyon Days

According to Greek mythology, Halcyon, or Halcyon, the daughter of Aeolus, married Ceyx. Ceyx was drowned and Halcyon, on hearing his fate, threw herself into the sea. The gods were moved by the tragedy of the young lovers; they brought him back to life in the form of halcyons, or kingfishers, and they decreed that for the seven days from December 22 to December 29, the sea should remain calm while the kingfishers built their nests upon it. These seven days, the last of the year, are therefore called halcyon days, days of tranquillity.

Useful Bequest

"Life and endow a college or a hall," wrote Pope, but the late vicar of Upper Chute did something better than that with his money. Upper Chute is a village on the Wilshire border, which lies to water supply and in a dry year the people used to have to go miles for water. Rev. Samuel Conway, former pastor of Chute, constructed an underground reservoir to store rainwater and this he left to the parish. In dry times each cottage is allowed four pails of water a day, and in some instances the water is sent beyond the village to the villagers.

County's Many Attractions

There is a county of England so near to London that no visitor to the city should fail to explore the beauties of the countryside. There is Chichester, the seat of the Bishops of Exeter, the seat of the Bishops of Exeter, the seat of the Bishops of Exeter.

The village of Chichester, in Hampshire, is a town of hallowed memories. It is a town of hallowed memories, a town of hallowed memories, a town of hallowed memories.

Harvest Moon

The harvest moon is the full moon which rises nearest to the autumnal equinox. At that season the path of the moon passes quite closely above and below the horizon at the time of the full moon, so that it is visible for several nights in succession, prolonging the natural twilight. It is so called from the assistance its illumination gives to harvesters. If the moon is full after September 23, it is called the hunter's moon.

Capture holiday business

1930's candle is burning low. The last big chance to bring sales figures for the year up to a presentable figure is through holiday business, and the best way to get the most out of holiday business is to advertise consistently in the columns of the Citizen. We are prepared to offer you practical suggestions, and the cost can be kept within a reasonable limit. Let's go over this together and make your ads pull to a maximum.
